PRESTIGE HOMES

Case Study

What they asked for

The client wanted to add the finishing touches to their beautiful traditional home. Their brief was to create and install the following items using the ideas they got from books and magazines:

Curved library unit

Credenza display incorporating a drinks cooler

Bathroom vanity units

What we did

We worked alongside the client, at their home and at our offices to gain a clear understanding of their requirements. At each stage in the design process, the client visited our offices and spent time with the design development team. This level of client involvement ensured the finished items were completely personalised and the client could view them at each stage of the design and creation process.

Our team carefully installed the pre-finished joinery into their home at the end of the project leaving them with an instant transformation of space with minimum disruption.

What they said

"We didn't think we would find anyone who could produce our library unit and were delighted with the way the team at Bentleys interpreted our brief. It was important to us to get involved in the design development process and found John and his staff extremely proactive and sensitive to our requirements. The installation team did an exceptionally tidy and professional job; you wouldn't know that they had been there. We wouldn't hesitate to recommend them."
